

Communications Intern Anishnabe Moose Committee

Description of Organization

The Anishnabe Moose Committee (AMC) is a grassroots committee made up of folks from several different Anishnabe (Algonquin) communities in and around La Verendrye Wildlife Reserve and the Ottawa River watershed in western Quebec/North Eastern Ontario. The AMC engages directly with their communities to protect the moose, their lands, and their culture. Adhering to Anishnabe traditional governance framework, the AMC collaborates with their people—Elders, land users, youth, and others— to connect with their traditions and protect the moose and their lands, in and beyond La Verendrye.

AMC conducts community-led research and educational activities to build community knowledge that helps:

- Protect the moose populations,
- Reinvigorate traditional knowledge systems,
- Unify Anishnabe communities,
- Strengthen Anishnabe self-governance.

Responsibilities and deliverables

- Social media and newsletter content on moose and AMC activities (50%)
- Finding grants, fundraising and grant writing (30%)
- Summarizing projects for internal and external communications (15%)
- Research project assistance (5%)
